

Journal Entry Types

The journal system is to help the player keep up to date on the quest states through the game. Each of the journal entries are wrote from Pepper's point of view, in a sort of diary style.

Pre-Quest

Pepper after speaking to certain people, can be informed that a quest is available.

Example:

Pepper talks to Belinda Blink, She comments that Papa Brickolini is looking glum, and maybe he is need of help.

From this the player will learn that there is a quest available from Papa Brickolini.

The Journal entry to this might read:

"Belinda seems to think that Papa Brickolini is unhappy, I wonder why?"

Quest

When Pepper speaks to a quest activating character, like Papa Brickolini in 'Gust of wind'. A 'Quest' entry is added to the journal. This helps for repeatable quests, reminding the player of the start point, and also if the player turns down a quest to return to it later.

Example:

Pepper speaks to Papa Brickolini and hears about his hat missing trouble. At this point a journal entry is created.

"Papa's chefs hat blew away in a strong gust of wind, without it he cannot make his special pizza's"

If Pepper refuses the quest, then the journal entry will remind him that the quest is still there and available.

During-Quest

During a quest Pepper might have to locate an item or person. Speaking to certain characters on the Island he can find 'clues' which will help point him in the right direction. This will help if if quest is left open for a long time, the journal will act as a great reminder to show what the player has already done.

Example:

Pepper starts the Quest 'Medical Worry'. Dr. Clickett cannot find his medical bag, and cannot remember where he last saw it. The only clue which Dr. Clickett can remember is that his last patient was Nick Brick. So Pepper receives an entry in the journal "Dr. Clickett's last patent was Nick Brick". This clue tells Pepper to go and speak to Nick Brick.

Pepper can receive many During-Quest clues, all helping to build up a clearer picture to the solution.
